No matter who wins the election, the Lord still reigns! God's sure been good to us this past month. He allowed us to be part of some missions conferences, preach across the state, and continue the work where I'm continuing to work with our legislators in counseling and prayer. We do have a few good people in office. Of course, it's the bad ones you hear about. About 95% of politicians give the rest of them a bad name. During the summer I'll be working with some of our lawmakers concerning some programs we will be sponsoring in the coming legislative session. I'll be sure to keep you updated on events.

Speaking of keeping updated, I'm getting a TON of calls, letters, texts and carrier pigeons about the upcoming election. First, election day is May 16th. I encourage you to vote on election day but to NOT vote early. Under a new law, election officials are allowed to look at those results and every bit of research I've done, shows early voting is a way to manipulate results. If you want to learn about the candidates, I've been examining the races, issues and candidates on my YouTube channel, "Patriot Point." I hope these videos will be helpful to you as you make your decision. I've decided to not come out in favor of any one governor candidate. Any of them would be an improvement over what we have now. For whatever you think it's worth, here are some of the people I'll be voting for. In the Secretary of State race, I'll be voting for Stephen Knipper, and for the Treasurer race I'll be voting for Andrew Cooperrider.

Look for this image on my YouTube channel, "Patriot Point," to learn about some of the governor candidates.

ON THE

HOMEFRONT

I've been selected for jury duty. For some reason, it feels like getting drafted. I have to go to some briefings this month then be ready to serve all of next month. We had some out-of-state meetings scheduled for the ministry. Please pray we can still go to preach at these. When I mention I'm an ultra-conservative Baptist preacher, I have a guess they just might not select me as one of the jurors.

Also in homefront news, we're moving my dad into the house. My mother passed away a few years ago, and so we thought it'd be best to have him with us. I said, "Dad, if you're living under my roof, it's going to be my rules." He didn't think that was funny... then grounded me for the rest of the week... drat.
